Because the Communist military aid programs, in a response to available opportunities, in part influenced by the absorptive capacity of the recipients, the annual magnitude and direction of aid has been highly variable. Most Soviet and EE. commitments since 1966 reflect the continuing arms buildup in the Arab countries in the wake of the 1967 war with Israel and new extensions to India and Iran. The Chinese program has centered around Pakistan and Tanzania which accounts for about 85% of total Chinese military aid.
